Cccccccc Numb. 4422.

The Daily Courant.

Monday, December 26. 1715.

Madrid, December 9.

'SINCE the Loſs of the Flota in 'the Weſt-Indies the Court having reſolved to ſend another Fleet thither next Year, has caſt its Eye on Holland, to buy there Ships and neceſſary Equipage. But the Swediſh Miniſter, who is Son to Count Welling, deſiring to reap for his King the Advantage of this Occaſion of ours, has offered in his Swediſh Majeſty's Name, that if the Court will advance him a Sum of Money for equipping them, he will furniſh the King with what Number of Ships he pleaſes, ſaying that his Maſter has a great many to diſpoſe of that have been taken from the Engliſh and Dutch; propoſing alſo very great Advantages that this Country may reap, with reſpect to Naval Stores, by a Commerce with Sweden. 'Tis believed the Court may accept theſe Offers, except England and Holland find Means to croſs the Negociation, which is of great Importance to Sweden in the preſent Conjuncture; ſeeing that by Sales of that Nature they may raiſe Money enough to make another Campaign. The laſt Advices which his Catholick Majeſty received from the Havana, are, that there were ſaved out of the Flota a Million of Pieces of Eight on the Account of the Merchants, and Six Hundred Thouſand on the King's Account: But the Merchandize were almoſt all ſpoiled. The Dutch Ambaſſador will ſhortly take his Character and make a [illegible] bring his Affairs, relating to the execution of the Treaty of Commerce between Spain and that Republick, near to a good Concluſion, by the Means of Count Alberoni. The Treaty of Commerce between Great Britain and Spain is alſo fully adjuſted to the reciprocal Satisfaction of the Merchants of both Nations: Which is in great part owing to the new Miniſtry, the laſt Miniſtry, eſpecially Cardinal Giudice, having always kept back that important Negociation.

'Prince Pio, Governor of Barcelona, has proceeded with great Violence againſt the French Merchants who are ſettled there, in making them, contrary to Cuſtom, pay Contributions and Quarter Soldiers: And thoſe who have oppoſed it, have been ſent to Priſon with their Hands tied behind them, like Malefactors. The French Ambaſſador has made Complaints of this, and written to his Court about it.

From the Hague Courant, dated Dec. 25.

Vienna, Dec. 11. On the 7th Inſtant the Count de Wratiſlaw arrived in this City from Bohemia, and on the 9th Count Charles de Cannitz came hither from his Biſhoprick of Lubiana. Yeſterday arrived here an Expreſs from the Duke of Lorraine, and his Highneſs himſelf, with the Dutcheſs his Spouſe, are expected here very ſuddenly. We have Advice that the Electoral Prince of Bavaria departed the 2d Inſtant from Munick for Venice, where he will tarry the Holy-days, and then proceed to Rome.

From the Amſt. Gazette, dated Dec. 24.

Paris, Dec. 16. 'Tis confirmed that divers Biſhops have re-united themſelves to the Cardinal de Noailles concerning the Affair of the Conſtitution. 'Tis ſaid that M. Humbelot having made Complaints to the Duke of Orleans on Occaſion of the Reſolutions taken in the Sorbonne againſt him, he was [illegible] that he had by his own Fault brought it upon himſelf. It was formerly ſaid that M. Bernard, the famous Banker, was to be proſecuted, for ſending the Species out of the Kingdom; but we hear that he has produced for his Juſtification the Orders of the late King and his Miniſtry, and that he has at the ſame time given in all all his Accounts, with which the Court is very well satisfied; and his Royal Highness the Duke of Orleans has even had the Goodness to declare in a full publick Audience, that he was very well satisfied with his Service to the late King, and exhorted him to continue it; ordering at the same time that due Justice should be done to his Reputation.

From the Hague Courant, dated Dec. 25.

Brussels, Dec. 23. On Thursday Night the Heers Gockinga and Geldermalsen came hither from Antwerp, and have already held divers Conferences with Count Coningsegg. Yesterday a Courier from the British Court going to Hanover passed through this Place, having left a Packet here.

Hague, Dec. 24. Yesterday Morning M. van Meyndershagen, the King of Prussia's Minister, was in Conference with the Deputies of the States General.
